

Bullet

July 12, 2025

I first laid eyes on Bullet when he was an 8 weeks old puppy. He was a rescue from another truck driver who wasn't happy with him and was threatening to abandon him. From that point on, Bullet and I were inseparable and he became my trucking companion. He wasn't my emotional support animal, I was his.

His level of protection was actually a little scary at times - nobody could get within 20 feet of me or the truck without him going ballistic, not even our closest friends. However, the wife and I got to see a different side of him when he came down from guard mode.

He was very playful and a total ding-a-ling that just made you laugh at his shenanigans. An extremely loyal and loving dog who was taken well before his time.
