

London Mykah Vargas

March 10, 2026

London was the kind of dog who made every day feel a little lighter. She loved her toys more than anything, always carrying them around like they were her greatest treasures. And if you ever got close to her, you were definitely getting covered in drool—her own special way of showing love. She was also the biggest bed hog, somehow managing to take up all the space no matter how small she looked.

She was truly the happiest puppy, full of joy, energy, and a heart bigger than anything. London showed me what real friendship and unconditional love look like. She was always there, no matter what kind of day I was having, and she had a way of making everything feel okay. I'll always carry that love with me.
